Syrah Resources (ASX: SYR) ("Syrah" or "Company") is pleased to announce it has awarded Worley Group (ASX: WOR) ("Worley") a contract to provide construction management services for the initial expansion of its active anode material ("AAM") facility in Vidalia, USA ("Vidalia") to 11.25ktpa AAM production capacity ("Vidalia Initial Expansion")¹. These services have commenced and are being delivered by Worley's USA Gulf Coast team.

To preserve the project schedule and ensure the Company was prepared to transition to early site preparation work of the Vidalia Initial Expansion, Worley and Syrah have been jointly advancing initial pre-construction activities since August 2021. Worley has significant knowledge of Vidalia's proposed processing technologies and key equipment packages and is integrated with Syrah's project team. The Company has worked closely with Worley through the previous project phases for the planned expansion of production capacity at Vidalia, including the Bankable Feasibility Study, front-end engineering and design and detailed engineering and procurement. Worley also performed engineering, procurement and construction services for the installation of the carbonisation furnace at the Vidalia qualification facility.

Syrah Managing Director and CEO Shaun Verner said, "We are pleased to execute this services agreement and to continue our successful technical partnership with Worley in the construction of a 11.25ktpa AAM facility at Vidalia. The finalisation of this contract, and the substantial engineering work completed with Worley, has significantly de-risked the project and Worley's construction management support will be critical to the successful delivery of the Vidalia Initial Expansion project."

Worley President of the USA Gulf Coast region, Amanda Knost, said "At Worley, our strategic focus is on delivering a more sustainable world. Having supported Syrah on its Vidalia expansion project from
